World Hemophilia Day -2024

Bleeding disorders are not the end of the world; you could still lead a normal life

In 1989, the World Federation of Hemophilia (WFH) started the first-ever World Hemophilia Day to raise awareness about hemophilia and other bleeding disorders. April 17 was chosen as the date in memory of Frank Schnabel, who was born on that day in 1942 and dedicated his life to improving the lives of people affected by bleeding disorders.

Hemophilia is sometimes referred to as "the royal disease," because it affected the royal families of England, Germany, Russia and Spain in the 19th and 20th centuries. It is a rare and serious disease affecting approx 1 out of 10,000 people around the world. Many people with haemophilia are still undiagnosed or inadequately treated. Even when treated, people may suffer from chronic pain and limited mobility mainly due to bleeds in the joints, and if undertreated or not treated at all, risk dying at a young age.

This year 2024, World Hemophilia Day theme is "Equitable access for all: recognizing all bleeding disorders". This theme emphasizes treatment for all and envisions a society in which every individual with inherited bleeding disorders has access to care, regardless of their kind of bleeding condition, gender, age, or location.

India is home to the second largest population of patients living with hemophilia. The poor availability of diagnostic and treatment facilities, along with the lack of awareness about hemophilia amongst primary care physicians and specialists is a major obstacle for the management of hemophilia.

Care of hemophilia has improved a lot in the last decade with an increase in hemophilia treatment centres and free factor injections, that help in blood clotting. In developed countries, majority of the patients are on regular replacement therapy which decreases or prevents bleeding.

Recently India have conducted the first human clinical trial of gene therapy for haemophilia A (FVIII deficiency) at Christian Medical College (CMC) Vellore. The trials involved deploying a novel technology of using a lentiviral vector to express a FVIII transgene in the patient's own haematopoietic stem cell which will then express FVIII from specific differentiated blood cells. Hence there is a hope that manufacturing of this vector will commence soon in India and proceed with further clinical trials.

Let's join people across the globe observing World Hemophilia Day to acknowledge volunteers, who support the hemophilia community and raise awareness about the condition.

Message from the Secretary General on World Red Cross Day 2024

“One way or another, we all have to find what best fosters the flowering of our humanity in this contemporary life and dedicate ourselves to that.”
– Joseph Campbell

In a world often marked by strife, division, and adversity, the essence of humanity rises above adversity and upholds the values that define our shared humanity.

As we commemorate this occasion in 2024, the theme “Keeping Humanity Alive” serves as a poignant reminder of the enduring commitment of the Red Cross Movement to uphold human dignity, alleviate suffering, and extend assistance to people facing dire circumstances, particularly in remote and hard-to-reach areas.

In Indian philosophy, the concept of keeping humanity alive is deeply rooted in the ethical and spiritual teachings that guide individuals towards leading a life of compassion, integrity, and service. Across various philosophical traditions such as Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism, and Sikhism, there are profound insights and principles that emphasize the importance of nurturing humanity in both individual and collective spheres. It is not merely a philosophical concept but a call to action—a commitment to embodying noble virtues, promoting social harmony, and working towards the well-being and upliftment of all beings.

In the Indian Vedas, the concept of keeping humanity alive is conveyed through various hymns, verses, and philosophical teachings that emphasize the importance of ethical conduct, compassion, and service to others. “समानं मन्तः समितिः समानी समानं मनसः चित्तमेषाम्। समानम् मन्तम् अभि मन्तये वः समानेन वो हविषा जुहोमि”; This hymn from the Rigveda extols the principle of sameness and equality in thought and action.

As we observe World Red Cross Day, let us pay tribute to the resilience of the human spirit and the power of compassion to overcome adversity. Volunteers are the backbone of Indian Red Cross activities, enabling branches to execute successful initiatives and benefiting millions of disadvantaged people. Let us honour the countless volunteers and staff who work tirelessly to bring relief and hope to those facing the greatest hardships. And let us recommit ourselves to the noble cause of humanity, ensuring that the principles of compassion, dignity, and solidarity remain at the forefront of our collective efforts to build a better world for all. I wish all Red Cross governance, staff and volunteers a happy World Red Cross Day.
